Don't be Deceived.

There has been a sport in the price of range cattle in the eastern market, but cattlemen are in doubt whether to trust it or not. It may be a ruse on the part of the dressed beef combine to glut the market and enable them and the canning establishments to make a harvest. The dressed beef outfit will make the best of the time from now until the sitting of the various state legislatures, for they know full well that their field of operations will be curtailed. The granger is not going to submit to the reduction in price of his beef and the ranger is going to participate in the benefits. The consumer has never had any benefit from the wholesale robbery that the big four have been practising on the cattle raisers and have only had rotten disease breeding meat shoved under their noses instead of fresh, clean, home killed beef. They are coming to know this fact and will join with the cattle raiser in the ernsade against rotten meat and the dressed beef combine. There is bound to be a move all along the line this winter and the range cattlemen should aid it in every way But don't be deceived by the reports of the sudden rise in the price of range cattle.-Magdalena Mail.
